Historical Sketch

The Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States (M.O.L.L.U.S.) first met in Philadelphia on April 15, 1865, the day President Lincoln was shot. The original purpose of the organization was to act as an honor guard for the remains of the President. The guard was to include officers and ex-officers of both the army and the navy. Subsequent meetings were held to finalize funeral preparations and to formalize the organization. The founders were Brevet Lt. Col. Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell, Lt. Col. Thomas Elwood Zell, and Capt. Peter Dirck Keyser.

The Order consists of several state Commanderies and the national Commandery-in-Chief; composed of the current commanders, vice commanders, recorders and their predecessors. Voting power lies in the Congress of the Order, which is made up of three representatives from each commandery. The commandery-in-chief holds executive and judicial powers.

Commanderies averaged six meetings a year. The proceedings included a business meeting, readings of historical papers, and anecdotes about the Civil War, many of which were later published by the commanderies.

Many prominent men have been members of the Order, including Generals U. S. Grant, Philip Sheridan, William Tecumseh Sherman, John M. Schofield and Nelson Miles; Presidents Hayes and Harrison and Admiral David G. Farragut. Membership has two classes: Original Companions, who served in the Civil War as Union officers; and Hereditary Companions, through direct male lineal descent, or nephews of Original Companions. Men whose direct line male ancestor was a Union officer, but not originally a member of the Order, are also eligible for membership. The national organization maintains a Civil War library and museum in Philadelphia.

The Illinois Commandery was formed May 8, 1879 in Chicago. Its first commander was Philip H. Sheridan, Lieutenant General of the U.S.A. It met an average of nine times per year. A selected number of the historical papers read before the commandery were published and are kept at the Chicago Historical Society. The Illinois Commandery also maintained a museum of Civil War relics, photographs, papers and documents at 320 Ashland in Chicago.

Scope and Content

The M.O.L.L.U.S. Commandery of the State of Illinois Records consist of 7 cubic feet of minutes, annual reports, correspondence, membership rosters and records, financial records, a subject file, publications, and M.O.L.L.U.S. awards and ceremonies files. Nearly one cubic foot of the collection contains correspondence, reports, convention notes and files pertaining to specific ceremonies of the Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States (D.O.L.L.U.S.) and the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War (S.U.V.C.W.).

The M.O.L.L.U.S. Collection is composed of the accumulated records of past presidents of the Illinois Commandery of M.O.L.L.U.S., located in the Chicago area. The files of the organization passed from each retiring officer to his successor. Most of the material in this collection comes from Charles A. Brady, Jr. and Martin P. Dutch, who were past presidents of both the Illinois Commandery and the national M.O.L.L.U.S. The files of the auxiliary organization D.O.L.L.U.S. were included with this collection. Often the wives of M.O.L.L.U.S. commanders served as presidents of D.O.L.L.U.S. It is also evident that many M.O.L.L.U.S. members belonged to S.U.V.C.W. All three organizations were active in President Lincoln commemorative ceremonies.

The collection is divided into nine files: The Constitution, By-Laws, and History File, 1879-1971; The Minutes and Annual Reports, 1926-1985; Correspondence, 1921-1988; Membership Records, 1868-1988; Financial Records, 1887-1980; Subject File, 1958-1988; Ceremonies and Awards, 1960-1975; Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States, 1975-1987; and Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, 1956-1976.

The Constitution, By-Laws, and History, 1879-1971 (Box 1) consists of copies of the M.O.L.L.U.S. constitution and by-laws, and a bound volume used as a sign-in record for early meetings of the Illinois Commandery.

The Minutes and Annual Reports, 1926-1985 (Box 1) is arranged chronologically and includes minutes, agendas, and notices of meetings. There are annual reports and reports to the Commandery. The last two folders in the file are minutes from the annual national meetings.

The Correspondence, 1921-1988 (Boxes 1 and 2) is arranged chronologically and includes the correspondence of the Illinois Commandery.

It includes some letters from Herbert Hoover (1964). There is correspondence of Commandery-in-Chiefs Brady and Dutch. Some correspondence with the national organization and M.O.L.L.U.S. officers are present.

The Membership Records, 1868-1988 (Boxes 2-4) is arranged with general information first. This includes application forms, certificates, dues records, and membership ephemera. The next group of folders are rosters, mailing lists for the Loyal Legion and the S.U.V.C.W. The major portion of this file is approved applications. These are arranged alphabetically by the last name and only cover the letters A through M, with Mosher being the final name. Applications from General Sheridan, John A. Logan, Robert Todd Lincoln, Rutherford B. Hayes and Edgar Rice Burroughs are included.

The Financial Records, 1887-1980 (Box 5) are arranged by record type, and then chronologically within each type. Records include cash disbursement vouchers, receipts, orders drawn on the treasury, canceled checks, bank statements, deposit slips, insurance policies and an office lease.

The Subject File, 1958-1988 (Box 6) is arranged alphabetically. It includes bulletins, circulars, publications, press releases and newsclippings.

The Ceremonies and Awards, 1960-1975 (Boxes 6 and 7) has Lincoln ceremony documentation: programs, menus and certificates for awards.

The Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States, 1975-1987 (Box 7) contains the president's records and correspondence, organizational reports and records of ceremonies and conventions. The file is arranged chronologically.

The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, 1956-1976 (Box 7) includes the S.U.V.C.W. by-laws, past commanders listings, Civil War Centennial documents, encampment notes and correspondence. This file is also arranged chronologically.

From: Black Hawk War Veterans Buried in the State of Illinois, compiled by Gerald Edward Coltrin His Dedication reads:

"To the pioneers who saw the opportunities in the newly formed State of Illinois and located here fusing their families future to the future of the State; to those who set aside their plows and picked up their flintlocks, powder flasks and shot and proceeded to answer the call for volunteers; to their memories, that they may never be forgotten; this volume is dedicated.

Introduction

"Death is a certainty for everyone. The veterans of the Black Hawk War started answering the final roll call even during the years 1831 and 1832 in Stillmans Valley, Kelloggs Grove and others. Many of those who passed on in the 25 years after the end of the War (1832-1857) found themselves buried in smaller family graveyards, perhaps on the "homeplace" they had claimed from the prairie. Today, 150 years later, many of these graveyards have been completely destroyed and forgotten. Many more are grown up with uncontrolled trees, brambles, poison ivy and weeds. Who knows how many years since last they were visited?

"I share with many interested in family history, a sadness at the lack of attention given to many old cemeteries. . . . With the value of farm land still rising it is becoming more and more attractive to return these patches of ground to production should the ground be privately owned and the owners share not our values. Our society seems to place a slightly higher value on the graves of her veterans. Perhaps this volume, in some small way, may be helpful in keeping a forgotten cemetery somewhere in our State intact."

Your Editor has selected out the counties vital to our interests--Cass, Greene, Jersey, Macoupin, Morgan, Pike, Sangamon and Scott. There were no Calhoun listings in Ed's booklet.

THE BLACK HAWK SOCIETY, P.O. Box 2882, Chicago IL 60690

Perhaps some of our readers may want to become members of the Black Hawk Society and thereby place their patriotic ancestor who served his country in the early days of Illinois settlement on permanent record, along with his lineage. The eligibility is taken from page 72 of Ed Coltrin's book from which the above veterans list was made.

HEREDITARY MEMBERSHIP is available to both men and women through either lineal or collateral lines of descent.

LINEAL DESCENT is direct descent from a veteran of the Black Hawk War. COLLATERAL DESCENT is direct descent from a brother or sister of a veteran of the Black Hawk War. The objectives of the society: to obtain and preserve genealogical information, to assist in locating and marking the graves, to support preservation and restoration of abandoned cemeteries of these veterans, and to increase and diffuse more information on the Black Hawk War as a part of our history.

From: ILLINOIS COLLEGE, A Centennial History 1829-1929, by Charles Henry Rammelkamp, President of the college since 1905. Published by Yale University Press, 1928, pp. 549-557.

Perhaps this index of Civil War veterans who were in this area attending our renowned college will be of interest to many family history seekers in the U.S. Additional information as to Rank and Unit can be given by photocopying the page one is listed on for those who inquire. Only name and year of class will be given here.

Note: "Although the faculty was directed by the trustees in 1866 to prepare a complete list of the Illinois College men who served in the Civil War, it was apprently never made. . . . The list presented is based on the Honor Rolls published by Sigma Pi in 1867 . . . and amplified by later investigations. Suggestions to this list will be thankfully received." MILITARY ORDER OF THE LOYAL LEGION

BY

HORATIO L. WAIT,

PAYMASTER (Lieutenant Commander) U. S. Nav

The assassination of President Lincoln was the immediate cause of the formation of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. The idea of such an organization had however previously found expression in the camp of the Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry on the right flank of the Union Army when lying before Fredericksburg during the month of March, 1863. Some of the officers of that command felt the same desire to preserve the friendship created by close association during their severe campaigns, and the same desire to perpetuate their good fellowship and mutual support that inspired the officers of the Continental Army when they organized the Order of the Cincinnati. Brevet Major Charles I. Wickersham, late of the Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry, relates that the subject was carefully and repeatedly considered by Surgeon S. B. Wylie Mitchell, Lieutenant William E. Van Reed of the Fifth United States Artillery, and himself. A general plan was proposed and many of the details decided upon in anticipation of the opportunity which might enable them to carry out their project.

When the assassination of President Lincoln took place, the officers interested in the formation of a Loyal Legion, assembled at the suggestion of Lieutenant Colonel T. Ellwood Zell, U. S. V. and others; they immediately perfected the organization which became the Pennsylvania Commandery and dates from April 15, 1865. Major-General George Cadwalader, U. S. V., was elected as the first Commander of the Order; Captain James Alden, U. S. Navy, Senior Vice Commander; Lieutenant-Colonel T. Ellwood Zell, U. S. V., Junior Vice Commander; Surgeon S. B. Wylie Mitchell, Recorder; Major-General Horatio G. Sickel, U. S. V., Treasurer, and Surgeon Peter D. Keyser, Chancellor.

Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, was enrolled as a companion, by a special resolution at one of the first meetings of the Order. The profound grief created by his untimely death, and the anxious solicitude felt by so many of the most loyal spirits in all branches of the service, caused them to look with hopefulness to this new organization as the one where they could most surely find absolute unwavering fidelity to the lofty and vital principles for which they had fought, and for which our martyred President had suffered, and where the faithful ones could most effectively unite for the moral support of civil liberty after the necessity for maintaining that liberty by force of arms had ceased in consequence of the termination of hostilities.

One of the earliest meetings of the Order was held in the room in the County Court building, at the southeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, in Philadelphia, where the first Senate, and the first House of Representatives of the United States assembled, where George Washington had been inaugurated first President of the United States, March 4, 1793, and where on March 4, 1797, John Adams, the second President of the United States, had also been inaugurated.

The Coat of Arms, Insignia, Seal and the inscriptions thereon were designed by Surgeon S. B. Wylie Mitchell, the first Recorder. The order acknowledged as its fundamental principles:—a firm belief and trust in Almighty God, extolling Him under whose beneficent guidance the sovereignty and integrity of the Union have been maintained, the honor of the flag vindicated and the blessings of civil liberty secured, established and enlarged, also true allegiance to the United States of America based upon fidelity to the National Constitution and Laws.

The objects of the Order are to cherish the memories and associations of the war waged in defense of the Republic, to strengthen the ties of fellowship and sympathy formed by companionship in arms, and maintain National Honor, Union and Independence. The Order is composed of a Commandery in chief and a single commandery in each of the States. (Chicago)

The legislative power of the Order is vested in its Congress which meets quadrennially in April. It has held sessions as follows:

1. April 9, 1869, at Philadelphia.
2. April 15, 1873, at Philadelphia.
3. April 11, 1879, at Boston.
4. April 13, 1881, at Philadelphia.
5. April 15, 1885, at Chicago.
6. April 10, 1889, at Cincinnati.

Major-General George Cadwalader acted as Commander-in-chief of the Order until his death, February 3, 1879. His successor was Major-General Winfield Scott Hancock, U. S. A. He retained the office until his death, February 9, 1886. The Pennsylvania Commandery acted as Commandery-in-chief until the formation of the Commandery-in-chief which was instituted October 21, 1885, with headquarters at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, with Major-General Winfield S. Hancock, U. S. A., as Commander-in-chief, who was succeeded by Lieutenant-General Philip H. Sheridan, from October 20th, 1886, to August 5th, 1888, whereupon Brevet-Major-General Rutherford B. Hayes became Commander-in-chief. Commanderies have been instituted in the following States:

1	Pennsylvania, April 15, 1865.	35	11	Minnesota, May 6, 1885.	38

10	Michigan, February 4, 1885.	"	20	Vermont, October 14, 1891.	"

The Commandery of the State of Illinois was instituted at Chicago, May 8, 1879. The Charter members were:

Lieutenant-General Philip H. Sheridan,	Colonel John Mason Loomis,
Brevet Major General Delos B. Sackett,	Brevet Lieutenant Colonel James J. Hoyt,
Brevet Major General Rufus Ingalls,	Brevet Major Taylor P. Rundlet,
Brevet Major General John M. Corse,	Brevet Lieutenant Colonel Henry W. Farrar,
Brevet Major General Augustus L. Chetlain,	Brevet Major George T. Burroughs,
Brevet Major General Arthur C. Ducat,	Captain James C. White,
Brigadier General Luther P. Bradley,	Captain Richard Robins.

Lieutenant General Philip H. Sheridan was elected Commander and continued as such until his removal to Washington in 1883; he was succeeded by Colonel John Mason Loomis, Brevet Brigadier General William E. Strong, Brevet Brigadier General Arthur C. Ducat, Brevet Brigadier General Israel N. Stiles, Brevet Major General John E. Smith, Brevet Major General Walter Q. Gresham, Major General George L. Illinois Commandery. Major General John M. Schofield, U. S. A., was a companion by transfer to the Illinois Commandery. Major General A. H. Terry, Major General George Crook, and Major General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., while in command of this military division, attended its meetings.

Brevet Major Charles I. Wickersham, one of the originators of the Order, the number of whose insignia is twenty-one, was transferred from the Pennsylvania Commandery to the Illinois Commandery Nov. 7, 1883. The Illinois Commandery has collected a valuable library of the literature of the War of the Rebellion numbering over 775 volumes, also a cabinet of interesting relics of distinguished officers.

The number of members on May 12, 1892, was 492. The total number of officers and companions who have held membership in the Illinois Commandery up to that date was 624. The total number of the members of the Order for 1892 was 7,791.

All who served as commissioned officers in the Army or Navy during the War of the Rebellion are eligible to membership as companions of the first class. The eldest sons of first class members, and their successors according to the rules of primogeniture, are eligible to membership as companions of the second class. The eldest male descendants of deceased companions of the first class, or of deceased officers who were eligible as such, may be elected to membership. A number of gentlemen who in civil life during the Rebellion were specially distinguished for loyalty to the government, have been elected companions of the third class, but the privilege of election to this class terminated April 15, 1890.

The patriotic men who established the Order wisely provided for its perpetuation by the admission to membership therein, as specified above, of the descendants of those who fought and endured for the preservation of the Union. The sons of officers thus admitted to fellowship with the survivors of our stupendous struggle for National existence, and enabled to hear directly from the lips of the actors themselves the details of the war, must thereby be most effectively impressed with the fearful cost of the victories which assured to us the peace we now enjoy, and the better prepared to preserve intact the benefits secured at such an outlay of lives and treasure.

The Illinois Commandery has most judiciously extended this privilege, by inviting to the June meeting in each year all sons of companions who may when of proper age become entitled to membership, thus affording them an opportunity of acquiring the spirit which is the vital force of the Order, namely, patriotism and loyalty to the National Union.

Dear Mr. Upham:

My letter pertains to the Commandery of State of Illinois Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United State of America. Since your name and address was in the most recent directories I decided to find out details of the organization from you, if you please.

I came across the Album of the Illinois Military Order published in Chicago, 1892. Since I have been editor of the Jacksonville IL Geneal Journal for the past 19 years, I was fascinated by the portraits of all those military officers. The book was in a bad shape, so could not make a photocopy.

I took it to the Illinois State Archives and Cody Wright, a Civil War specialist, was so excited about it that he immediately sent it for a microfilm that can be used by more people. I could find nobody else who knew about the organization, nor if it still existed.

On another day I contacted Dr. Temple at the Archives and found out that the Loyal Legion was still active, and he was a member. I also found out there is a like organization for the Dames. While I am sure my grandfather was not a military man, and I would not be eligible to be a member, I would like to have information on both organizations to publish in my quarterly since it reaches about 700 members in 40 states and Canada. Perhaps some of them may be very happy to find a portrait of their Civil War Officer in the microfilm they can eventually order. Were there other publications after the 1892 edition?

I am enclosing a copy of the preface to the 1892 edition which will be in my quarterly, along with an index of names of the officers. Eventually I hope to add the rank to the index names, and add it to the microfilmed copy for reference. This film will then be available from the Illinois State Archives for $10.00 each. Are there earlier or later published volumes for this Military Order? If so, I presume they would be in the Chicago area somewhere.

I would appreciate any information you may choose to send me, or refer me to some other official. Thank you very much for your time and consideration of this request pertaining to a little known organization - at least in our area.

Genealogically yours, Florence Hutchison

Mr. William H. Upham

Milwaukee WISC 53211

Dear Mr. Upham: As you will recall, I am sure, I published the index to the M.O.L.L.U. 1892 Album in one of my quarterlies. Did I send you a copy? Later, because the index in the back of the book gave only names, I went through and made a page by page index of name and rank of each officer.

Cody Wright at the Illinois State Archives, a Civil War buff and very good speaker, was delighted to see the book and had a microfilm made of it. My page by page index is shown in the front. Copies of the microfilm can be purchased from the State Archives, if desired.

I do not have your letter at hand, but I believe that you said that you had some Jacksonville connections. I wonder if this person listed below is a relative.

Abner A. Upham, b. 20 Nov 1838(?), died 17 Feb 1862, "Fell at the battle of Sugar Creek, Arkansas", on his tombstone in Jacksonville East Cemetery.

Abner is one of three tombstones set at the beginning of the soldier's lot, which is distinguished by a cannon set in the middle of the plot.

Because of my extensive cemetery work of indexing the thousands of burials in the two City cemeteries, the Board of Directors in 1987, I think, named one of the passage-ways Hutchison Drive.

I am enclosing a Marriage License which shows B. R. Upham as County Clerk. Is that your relative?

Now I am working on the history of the Bank of Illinois of Shawneetown's branch bank started here in Jacksonville 1838-1843. It involves a lot of famous people, among them Nathaniel Coffin who is a very interesting character to read about. It also involves William Churchill Posey who lived here, and his brother Washington Posey who was a banker in Shawneetown. They are the sons of General Thomas Posey, who is reportedly the only son of George Washington.

I would like to find a grant some where so that I could travel east next spring to do my own research on that latter issue. Since research on that problem has been ongoing since 1871, at least, I maintain that all the researchers who have published their data have been looking in the wrong place and time.

I am working on the Washington-Posey issue with a great-great-great-grandson of Posey's, a retired lawyer living in Buffalo Grove IL. He was going to Virginia this fall to see his son who lives in Bethesda, but he had to have eye surgery, and his doctor said, "no travel this fall."

Also, I am having conferences and letters to and from Dr. Harold Gibson, one of Illinois College's famous officers, and vice-president of the State University in Normal IL in years gone by. He was close to finding the proof of the GW/TP affair years ago from the Judge in Vincennes who handled the Posey vs Historical Society of Indiana's law case. But the Judge suddenly died before the information was passed on, unfortunately.

Historical research is never-ending, and I am fascinated by all the bits and pieces which seem to come my way to arouse curiosity and a desire to look further into the particular details of any given situation. That keeps my life ongoing in a very interesting way. I suppose no one in your organization has ever come up with the missing documents N to Z to complete the records at the Illinois State Historical Society in the M.O.L.L.U.S. files, have they?

Genealogically yours,

CHAPTER XVI

ILLINOIS IN THE MEXICAN WAR

THE SLOGAN—CALL TO ARMS—THE ORGANIZATION—OFF FOR THE WAR—POLITICS—ILLINOIS TROOPS RETURN

The two great political parties, the whigs and the democrats, were very evenly matched in numbers in 1840, but by 1844, the whigs had lost in the race. By the election of 1840, when there were three congressmen from Illinois, one was a whig and two were democrats. In 1844, there were seven congressional district. The whigs carried one and the democrats were successful in six. Illinois was therefore a democratic state in 1844, and more democratic in 1846. The democratic party had received a great setback in 1840, and though the death of Harrison had thrown the presidency into the hands of the democrats, yet they were scarcely able to recover by 1844. The admission of Texas into the Union had been before the Congress in one form or another since Texas gained her independence in 1836. Texas wanted to be admitted as a state into the Union. The southern democrats were favorable to the admission. Tyler who wished to restore himself in the favor of the South, openly favored the annexation of Texas. In the early part of the year 1844, Tyler negotiated a treaty of annexation with Texas. This he sent to the Senate for ratification, but it failed for want of a two-thirds majority. The presidential campaign was approaching and Texas must be annexed by hook or crook.

THE SLOGAN

The whigs were fairly well united in 1844. Their presidential candidate was Henry Clay. The democrats felt that Van Buren who had been beaten by Harrison in 1840, should be their leader, but a letter in which he stated his objections to the annexation of Texas, was his undoing. The convention named James K. Polk of Tennessee. The campaign cry was "The Reannexation of Texas and Fifty-four forty or Fight." Clay was unable to stem the tide against a war cry that appealed to the slave holding interests of the South and at the same time to the anti-slavery forces of the North. Polk was elected. Tyler now decided to approach the annexation of Texas from a different angle. A joint resolution was introduced providing for the admission of Texas into the Union as a state. The resolution passed both houses of Congress, the President signed it and it was ratified by the Texas government and the deed was done.

Texas claimed the Rio Grande as the western boundary while Mexico claimed the Nueces River as the eastern boundary of that country, and at the same time denied the independence of Texas. The United States designated the disputed territory as a revenue district for the collection of tariff duties. General Scott also was ordered to occupy the disputed area as United States territory. This then was the occasion of war. Mexican troops crossed into this disputed strip and a skirmish with United States troops resulted in the death of a few soldiers. It was then that the Congress declared that a state of war exists by the act of Mexico herself.

Call to Arms

Legislation was now hurriedly passed authorizing the President to call for 50,000 volunteers and appropriating $10,000,000 with which to carry on the war. Polk, in his inaugural address, had said that there were four great measures which he wished to carry through during his administration. They were—first, to reduce the tariff; second, to reestablish the independent treasury; third, to settle the Oregon boundary; and fourth, to acquire California. Just what was the explanation of the President's declaration that the acquisition of California was one of four great measures? It belonged to a friendly nation who had on several occasions refused to sell it or in any way to part with it. The term California included more territory then than the present state of California.

The only way that we can see how he might acquire California was to provoke Mexico to war and then by overwhelming numbers and by unlimited resources crush her and take from her the fairest portion of her territory. The occasion for war was at hand. It was a strip of territory lying between the Rio Grande and the Nueces rivers.

Diplomatic relations had been suspended between the United States and Mexico at the passage of the annexation bill in 1845. It was generally known that Mexico would not tamely submit to the loss of Texas including the disputed strip between the two rivers.

Gen. Zachary Taylor was sent into the disputed territory with an "Army of Occupation" and a fleet of warships was in the Gulf of Mexico. Every one expected war. Illinois people were not especially interested in the conquest of Mexico. The slave interests had already profited politically and economically by the acquisition of Texas. Just why people in Illinois should be interested in a further acquisition of slave territory is difficult at this time to understand.

The news went abroad that "American blood had been shed on American soil." The call for troops caused the red blood to flow a little faster, and the opportunity was at hand for the adventurer to say nothing derogatory of the patriotic minded citizen who is always ready to answer the call of his country. The 50,000 volunteers were by some plan apportioned chiefly to the south and west. Illinois was authorized to furnish three regiments—3,000 troops. Illinois people were familiar with many of the officers of high rank in the United States army. Gen. Zachary Taylor who was in command of the "Army of Occupation," was familiarly known by scores of the men who were in the Black Hawk war. He was a major and later lieutenant-colonel. Jefferson Davis, who led a Mississippi regiment, was second lieutenant with the regulars in the Indian war. Gen. W. S. Harney led a cavalry contingent from Vera Cruz to Mexico City under General Scott. Harney was a captain in the Black Hawk war. General Twiggs, who commanded a division under General Scott. Lieut. Edward D. Baker, who was an active young officer in the Black Hawk war, was colonel of the Fourth Regiment, Illinois troops, in the Mexican war. Lieut. Albert Sidney Johnston was a young officer in the regular army in the Black Hawk war. So also was Joseph E. Johnston in the Illinois war. They both had honorable parts in the Mexican war.

When it was known that war had been declared and that Illinois was to furnish approximately 3,000 troops, there was great activity in military circles. The pay for privates was $8.00 per month, but with commutations it amounted to $15.50. The enlistments were for one year as it was thought that a peace could be conquered within that time. Governor Ford issued his general order, as commander-in-chief of the militia. to the officers in the several districts to call for volunteers for the war. On account of the long period of the Mormon disturbances, the militia was badly disorganized and to meet the situation the sheriffs were asked to convene the old organizations and to enroll such additional individuals as desired to enter the United States service. It was announced that each company would contain about eighty privates, and the first full companies organized would be accepted, till the state's quota was filled. Military orders were scattered over the state and patriotic speeches were made by ambitious military leaders. The gallant John J. Hardin was the first volunteer. There were prompt responses by the people to the call for the nation's defenders. In ten days, more than the state's quota was reported to the governor. It is said that by the middle of June forty companies above the quota were offered. Each company was to elect its own officers who should serve under certificates of election until the Government should issue commissions. Alton was designated as the place of rendezvous and to this point the several companies were ordered by the governor. There was great disappointment over the state among the companies that were not selected to fill the quota.

Independent Companies

First—Captain, Adam S. Dunlap.
Second—Captain, Wyatt B. Stapp.
Third—Captain, Michael K. Lawler.
Fourth—Captain, Josiah Littell.

The original order from the War Department was for three regiments from Illinois. It turned out that another regiment was accepted by reason of the influence of Congressman Edward D. Baker. Baker was made colonel of the regiment and he had only to name the companies already enlisted and ready to go on a moment's warning. In the spring of 1847 Congress made a second call for volunteers, and two additional regiments were assigned to Illinois. These were organized as shown above. This made six regiments of nearly a thousand each. In addition there were four independent companies as listed above. To all of these enlistments there should be added 150 individuals who enlisted in the regular army.

War is after all a hideous thing but in spite of that fact there are always great numbers of people who are ready for the call to arms. The state had been in a disturbed condition since 1840, and there had been many appeals to arms in that period. In many towns in Illinois there were well organized militia companies. These were made up of young men of good families. They frequently went to the expense of procuring uniforms, guns, and other equipment. They met regularly for drill and discipline. Attention has already been called to the Carthage Grays which were active in the latter part of the Mormon war. These independent militia organizations became the nuclei of the companies which made up the army from Illinois. It has been explained that the times were out of joint in Illinois when the Mexican war began and that the hard times and poor prices for farm products made a restless people.

Off for the War.

The First and Second regiments left Alton on July 17, 18, 19, on board three Mississippi steamers, the Convoy, the Missouri, and the Hannibal. They transhipped at New Orleans for Matagorda Bay, where they landed August 7th. They were accompanied by General Wool. From Port Levacca on Matagorda Bay the First and Second regiments marched up the San Antonio River to the vicinity of the City of San Antonio. The distance was 120 miles and was traversed between the 7th and the 23d of August. Here they remained from the 23d of August to the 26th of September. General Wool was in command and there were about 3,000 troops. On September 26th the little army broke camp and marched a little south of west about 140 miles to the vicinity of Eagle Pass, Texas. Here they crossed the Rio Grande and turned southwest toward Monclova, Mexico, which they reached November 23. From Monclova south and west to Parras thence southeast to the great road from San Luis Potosi to Saltillo. Here General Wool with the First and Second regiments of Illinois troops was joined by General Taylor with 5,000 troops. Here, where the great road runs through the "narrows" was fought the battle of Buena Vista. This battle was begun on February 22, 1847, but night stopped the conflict. It was renewed on the 23d and raged nearly all day. The Illinois troops, the First and Second regiments under Colonels Hardin and Bissell won great glory on this day. The battle was fought over broken plateaus and intervening gorges. Infantry, cavalry and artillery participated. The total American troops numbered not over 5000, while General Santa Ana is said to have had as many as 20,000.

At the close of the second day's battle, after the Mexicans were in full retreat, three colonels, Hardin and Bissell of Illinois, and McKee of Kentucky, pursued the retreating foe. Their commands were attacked by a force five times as numerous and in seeking a sheltered place from the attacks of the Mexicans they were entrapped in a gorge and after a slaughter of twenty minutes were relieved by the arrival of a battery, but among the dead was the beloved Colonel John J. Hardin,

Night put an end to this battle in the gorges and on the spurs of the nearby mountains. On the morning of the 24th there were no Mexican troops within sight or hearing of the American outposts. It was now a sad task for the living to care for the dead and wounded. The total loss on the American side was: killed, 264; wounded, 482. The loss of the Mexicans was he was ably assisted by Colonel Foreman, Colonel Burnett of the New York regiment, and Major Harris of the Fourth Illinois. There was a loss of 70 killed and wounded in this brigade; 417 for the American forces—64 killed and 353 wounded.

General Twiggs speaks in the highest terms of the two Illinois regiments in the battle of Cerro Gordo and also in the pursuit of the retreating Mexicans. "The gallant troops of Illinois shared to no inconsiderable extent in the dangers, toils, and hardships. as their large ratio of losses attest, and their heroic deeds have reflected imperishable honor and glory upon our state."

Illinois Troops Return

From the victory of Cerro Gordo the American army marched along the national road to Jalapa, a place not defended by Santa Ana. Here the invading army halted for a considerble time. General Scott had about 9,000 men and he was anxious to give them advantage of a rest on this upland plain. It was a point noted for its healthfulness, and there was an abundance of food of needed variety. General Scott knew that the time of the enlistment of nearly half of his men was about to expire. Upon inquiring he found that the Third and Fourth Illinois regiments did not care to reenlist. They had served the one year which was the period of enlistment, and the year had been a trying one. They were therefore ready to take their leave of the land of cactus and hot tamales. General Scott was also looking for reinforcements and he waited at Jalapa to exchange 4,000 seasoned troops for as many or more fresh but untried enlistments. The Third and Fourth returned from the interior and reached New Orleans and were mustered out May 25. The veteran First and Second regiments left Buena Vista and rested at Camargo a short time before being mustered out at that place June 17, 1847. The First brought the body of their beloved colonel, John J. Hardin, who had made the supreme sacrifice at Buena Vista. He was buried at Jacksonville.

The Fifth Regiment was mustered in at Alton June 8, 1847. The colonel was E. W. B. Newby. On the 14th of June the regiment left by boat for Fort Leavenworth. From Fort Leavenworth the regiment marched overland to Santa Fe. Here they remained at garrison duty though some of the companies went as far as El Paso. Stuve says that some of the members of this regiment organized a Masonic Lodge while in far-away Santa Fe.

The Sixth Regiment was organized and entered service at Alton. At New Orleans the regiment was divided into two battalions, the first was sent to Vera Cruz and the second to Tampico. Garrison duty was the lot of these two battalions, though the first did guard duty on the national road for a short time.

The records show that during the time the United States was at war with Mexico there were 73,776 volunteers entered the military service (all branches), while at the same time there were 42,545 regulars enrolled. Illinois furnished 6,123 volunteers, suffered a loss of 80 killed, 12 died of wounds, and 160 wounded.

The return of a nation's soldiery from the field of war is a great event in the life of that people. Creeds and political differences are forgotten, and all join in one affectionate welcome. It was so when the heroes of Monterey, Buena Vista, Vera Cruz, and Cerro Gordo returned to their friends and loved ones. "Public dinners, complimentary toasts, flattering addresses, and fulsome speeches were showered upon them; the newspaper press vied with the orators of the period in praises of the heroic deeds of our volunteer soldiery, while, as aspirants for office, all mere civilians had to stand aside and leave the track for the proud patrons of Mars, or be crushed in the results."

One of the most touching incidents upon the return of the troops from Mexico was a detachment of 300 men out of the First Regiment who bore the remains of their beloved commander to his last resting place in the beautiful young city of his young manhood. Richard Yates, who had studied law under Colonel Hardin, was selected to deliver the funeral oration.
